It's time to disconnect and reconnect with what matters! For families, businesses, and outdoor lovers, we know there is nothing that can compare to the "South's Great Lake!" Sure there are other lakes in the South, but none like Kentucky Lake, and the beauty, energy, and lifestyle that we've built on these shores is something worth experiencing. Kentucky Lake is the place to watch your kids become kids again, reconnect with the ones that matter through food and fellowship, and quite possibly find out why fishing just comes naturally here! At Kentucky Lake, we understand that the perfect vacation is different for everyone, so if you're not the avid angler, no worries! That's what makes Kentucky Lake naturally perfect; you have the ability to create a unique vacation experience that is just right for you and your family. Whether it's socializing around the campfire, laying out by the pool, or tubing and skiing along 2,300 miles of shoreline, Kentucky Lake has what you need. With attractions such as mini golf and go-karts, live country music shows, a local drive-in, and our state resort parks, there is always something to do day or night!

Kentucky Lake was born in 1944 after the completion of Kentucky Dam. The Dam itself is 206 feet high and 8,422 feet long and is used to help control floods on the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Kentucky Lake is the largest man-made lake in the eastern United States drawing in millions of visitors each year.

Kentucky Lake's neighbor, Land Between the Lakes, offers a variety of recreation. With over 170,000 acres, you can experience just about anything: take a drive through the Elk and Bison Prairie, see a constellation presentation at the planetarium or observe wildlife at the nature center. You can also visit The Homeplace or spend the day hiking or biking through the wilderness. Either way, there is something that every member of the family will enjoy. Don't worry, it's perfectly natural to want to relax and have fun, so try Kentucky Lake's natural perfection! We hope this guide becomes a useful resource in planning your vacation. It's your one-stop shop to plan the entire trip! You can find all of our lodging, dining, and activities inside. Come discover what makes us Great!

FISHING

The Tennessee Valley Authority built Kentucky Dam at Gilbertsville, Ky., impounding the Tennessee River in 1945. Kentucky Lake grew from that span, backing up more than 180 miles south, far into Tennessee. It's a huge water hole with almost 50,000 acres of surface in just Kentucky's portion of the impoundment. With major embayments, feeder creeks and coves lining both flanks of the reservoir, the shoreline is just immense. Perhaps the fish that generate the most headlines is black bass. There's a 15-inch minimum size limit on black bass at Kentucky Lake and the canal-linked sister reservoir Lake Barkley. Generous spawns of bass, however, have kept oodles and gobs of fish present and growing well beyond the minimal "keeper" size.

While a clear majority of Kentucky Lake black bass are largemouth, there's also a wrist-wrenching population of smallmouth bass. Depending on where and how anglers fish, smallmouth can now represent a fair segment of the black bass catch. Five-pound and larger smallmouth aren't strangers. Kentucky Lake's earlier reputation, however, was built on crappie. Unbelievable catches of crappie made the Tennessee River impoundment legendary way back when, and it's still a crappie angler's mecca all these years later. The dominant white crappie species lost ground to the once fewer black crappie, which favors clearer water and rocky habitat, benefiting from the changing conditions.

Biologists say crappie numbers are healthy but cyclic, with ups and downs every few year. The changes that came with a maturing Kentucky Lake made a big deal out of a whole class of little fish. The habitat tweaks that came with clearer waters are seemingly the reason that bluegill and redear sunfish transformed from kid stuff to a prominent sport fishery. In short, the bluegill and redears nowadays produce catches of quality fish in sumptuous quantities, especially during spring and early summer spawning times.

Other warm weather fishing mainstays are white bass and their slightly smaller cousins, yellow bass. These predators – "stripes" to the local anglers – can be caught most of the year but really shine when summer's heat is on. Trollers fishing for white bass as well as those casting and working lures on or near the bottom on offshore structures sometimes hook bonus fish – sauger, the Tennessee River cousin of the walleye. Sauger are often overlooked, but these glassy-eyed, toothy torpedoes are a great game fish and arguably the tastiest of all the lake's culinary possibilities.

If bigger is always better, however, and fishing for skillet or deep fryer fodder is a primary concern, you might want to consider Kentucky Lake's catfish: channel cats, flatheads and the plentiful and often ponderous blue catfish. Largely underfished and overlooked in favor of other species, catfish can be taken throughout the year. But they are an excellent bet during the days of summer when it may be a little more difficult to catch some other species. Kentucky Lake is a giant lake with plenty of relative giant fish of all sizes – from saucer-sized bluegill, to trophy bass to catfish as long as your leg. What species do you want to chase next?

HUNTING

Take a walk on the wild side of the Kentucky Lake area for some memory-making hunting adventures.

The woodlands, waters, fields and sloughs of the region keep pulling back sportsmen every season for pursuits of game, large and small, furred and feathered.

A headliner for many hunters is the white-tailed deer, and the Kentucky Lake area grows plenty and whoppers of the species. The state of Kentucky in general is among the leaders nationally in producing record book quality bucks.

Kentucky's long-running archery season, crossbow hunting, muzzleloader and modern rifle seasons provide ample opportunities to search out that wallhanger and the freezer-filling venison the deer hunter seeks.

Kentucky wildlife managers encourage hunters to take more whitetails to help hold the burgeoning population in check, so come on and lend a hand.

Public land is often critical to opportunity, and the big lake area has oodles of it. Chief among these is the U.S. Forest Service-managed Land Between the Lakes National Recreation Area.

The LBL is a topic all itself, an enormous wooded peninsula sandwiched between Kentucky Lake and the sister waters of Lake Barkley.

The LBL is 170,000 acres of ridges and hollows, more than 90 percent of it forested in oak- and hickory-dominated hardwoods. The big woods area has long been a favorite for visiting deer hunters who take advantage of tremendous elbowroom, bonus deer permits, quota gun hunts and freewheeling archery hunting opportunities. Another kind of habitat, if anything, more rich in game, is found in the Clark's River National Wildlife Refuge that centers around the bottomland hardwood corridor of Clark's River both upstream and downstream from its headquarters in Benton.

Presently regulated in conjunction with statewide seasons, Clark's River NWR offers thousands of acres where enterprising hunters can probe the bottomlands for boomer bucks in deer season. Turkeys rival deer when it comes to stirring hunter passions, and the Kentucky Lake area is packed with the big birds. The rites of spring mean turkey gobbler hunting hereabouts, and it mobilizes a camouflage-clad legion in pursuit of old Tom.

The LBL hosts quota turkey hunting as well as non-quota, open hunting opportunities each spring gobbler season. Clark's River NWR also hosts a great deal of turkey hunting under state-wide season regulation.

Waterfowling is another driving force for sportsmen. Kentucky Lake itself can be a chilly season hotbed of waterfowl action when Mississippi Flyway migrators spin off for some big water rest stops.

The big reservoir attracts a mixture of puddle ducks and some divers, and a smattering of Canadian geese add some extra big bird zest to the action. Free lance hunting from boat and shoreline blinds can be rewarding throughout the season. Kentucky Lake hunting can get a jolt of added duck movement during serious winter cold when bottomland waters freeze over and birds seek out the open water of the reservoir. For details on seasons and regulations, contact the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 1-800-858-1549 or see the Website www.fw.ky.gov. For the Land Between the Lakes, phone 270-924-2000 or visit www.lbl.org. ## Kentucky Lake - The South's Great Lake

GOLF

Although viewing birds in LBL and exploring the waters of Kentucky Lake are great ways to spend your outdoor vacation, sometimes you just have the need to make your own “birdies” and avoid the water. With this in mind, the Kentucky Lake area has several golf courses to let you seek out “birdies” and “eagles”, and try to avoid the wet stuff. From challenging 18-hole designs all the way to Executive courses for a quick afternoon 9, our courses will appeal to every skill level. And with our low prices, you can hit more greens while saving some “green”.

LODGING

For over 70 years, Kentucky Lake has offered visitors great lodging, dining and recreation.

Relax at any one of our resorts, motels, bed and breakfasts, campgrounds and condominiums, or dive into recreation with volleyball, jet skiing, boating, tennis, golf, fishing and hunting.

Kentucky Lake prides itself in offering diverse accommodations for everyone.

Our lodging includes lakefront cabins and cottages, motels and hotels (most with swimming pools and only a short drive from the lake), primitive and full hook-up campgrounds and unique floating house-boat vacations.

Our resorts and motels are strategically located throughout the beautiful lake area with access to major highways. At Kentucky Lake, you'll have no trouble finding just the right home away from home.

On the next few pages, you will see a variety of lodging establishments available to you at Kentucky Lake.

You can receive additional lodging information by visiting our website, www.visitkylake.com.

Malcolm Creek RESORT
Kentucky Lake

325 Guthrie Drive • Benton, KY 42025

Malcolm Creek Resort is located along Malcolm Creek just off the main waters of Kentucky Lake. Our resort is the perfect location for the whole family and the fisherman! The bay where we are situated allows you all the fun of fishing, skiing, just relaxing on a pontoon boat, plus easy access to the main lake. We are just across from the Rock Quarry and a short drive from Land Between the Lakes. LBL offers visitors the opportunity to experience 170,000 acres of wildlife (including buffalo and elk herd), history and abundant outdoor recreation activities.

For the family you'll find spacious cottages, a beach, swimming pool, playground, and much more! We have a full-service marina with fuel, covered slips, boat rentals, a store...just about everything you need for your fishing trip or family vacation! Check out our boat rental and lodging information and start planning your vacation today!

LODGE CAMPGROUNDS & MARINA

Anglers have long considered Kentucky Lake one of the best fishing lakes in the country. Record catches of bass and crappie are common. Because of our area's reasonably mild climate, Kentucky Lake has certainly become a sportsman's paradise for all seasons. Located atop a pine-studded hill overlooking Jonathan Creek, Sportsmans Lodge Campgrounds and Marina offers a location the fishing enthusiasts will love and accommodations that are by far the best on the lake.
